P.A.C.E November 14th 2025

Attendees: Sharon Mervin, Darren Allison, Antonio Hardy, Collen Kosinski, Kevin Jenkins, Dewayne Craft, Emma Slabbert, Genesis Juckett

For most of today's meeting the attendees went over the Juvenile stats presented by our Data Analyst Mrs. Slabbert. The beginning of the meeting was a reintroduction into what P.A.C.E stands for, it's goals and purpose with our agency.

Juvenile Stats

As we talked about at the last P.A.C.E meeting the accuracy and age of our youth using dangerous weapons is a concerning trend. Children as young as ten years old are participating in high-risk criminal activities. Our schools may have run several projects that kept older children, ages 15-17 busy during the last few months. This may account for a decrease in their age group. This meeting did not have local school representatives present to confirm. Our analyst is seeing a trend of parents and community members not wanting to file petitions on juveniles that commit crimes.

Drug Discussion

Our attendees took some time to talk about the occurrence of Delta-8 in our youth's lives. Delta-8 is seen more and more frequently in packaging that looks slightly identical to real candy and sweets consumers buy at retail stores. These packages look like normal candy packaging, sometimes they have well known cartoon characters. Regardless the packaging is bright and playful and catching to the eye. The companies that produce these products understand the appeal their packaging provides. Mrs. Kosinski mentioned that companies challenging the Delta-8 industry are going after copy infringement lawsuits to curtail the production of the packaging, as they are not able to sue the drug itself. Our SRO Craft will be bringing package examples to the next P.A.C.E meeting to show everyone in attendance.

Project Safe and Sound

Our agency implemented "Project Safe and Sound" a few years ago as a voluntary program designated to assist our agency when responding to individuals with support needs or mental health conditions. When parents and guardians enroll their loved one, essential information is securely stored and made available to officers if a call of service is made. This allows responding officers to be informed in advance, such as knowing if someone is non verbal or easily overwhelmed. That way our agency can approach the individual with understanding and appropriate care. This information is not used for tracking but solely to ensure safety, improve communication, and support positive interactions with our community. Corp Craft to check enrolment in the program resubmit current photographs of loved ones. Either in person at our agency or online with KPDConnect/iWitness on the City's page.
